The Singapore Institute of Technology's (SIT) Recognition of Excellence was held on 26 Oct 2016 at the Student Activities Centre at the SIT@Dover campus. Now in its second year, it is a special and important occasion on the SIT calendar to celebrate the achievements of SIT students and to recognise donors whose gifts support student excellence through scholarships and student performance awards.

At this year's ceremony, 15 named scholarships were awarded to 35 students from various degree programmes offered at SIT. These non-bonded scholarships were presented along with 24 Book Prizes and three Outstanding Student Awards. All were made possible by generous donors.

Welcoming the afternoon's guests to the event, Prof Loh Han Tong, Deputy President (Academic) & Provost, SIT, noted the increase in the number of awards that were presented this year, thanks to support from SIT's donors. He said, "These scholarships, prizes and awards to be presented today will spur our students on their journey to learn and to excel."

Mr Sharil Reiza (left), who received the EnGro Scholarship and the Rotary Club of Bugis Junction Outstanding Student Award, and Ms Lim Pei Shan, recipient of the Kewalram Chanrai Group Scholarship, charmed the guests with their heartfelt appreciation presentation.

For Ms Lim Pei Shan, who is enrolled in the Hospitality Business programme at SIT, receiving the Kewalram Chanrai Group Scholarship has inspired even bigger dreams for her. The first-year undergraduate said, "This scholarship will not just help me financially – I can see now the possibility of my helping to shape the future of hospitality in Singapore, particularly the tourism industry, with lots of hard work."

Thanking the donors for their transformative philanthropy and "making the pivotal difference in the life-long journey to pursue excellence", Prof Tan Thiam Soon, President, SIT, said, "Our donors have set an example for our students on how giving back can change the lives of others."

More than 200 guests attended the ceremony, including SIT's donors and friends, SIT senior management, faculty and staff, as well as representatives from SIT's Overseas University partners. Of course, the stars of the evening were the award and scholarship recipients, who had loved ones by their side to join in the happy occasion.
